Daughter of woman who died in Woodstock nursing home sues operator, 2 nurses

September 6, 2008

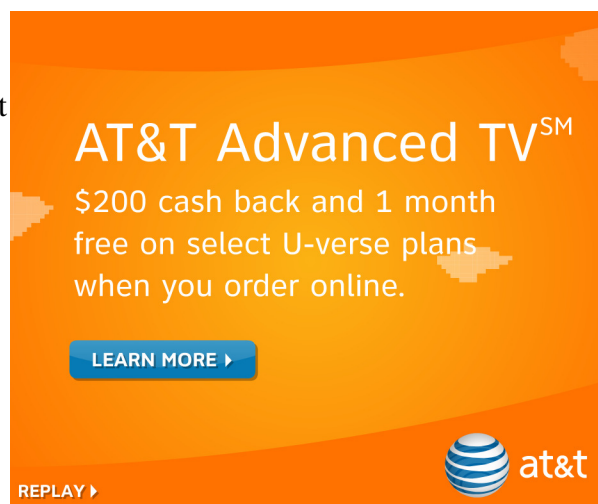

The daughter of a former Woodstock nursing home resident whose body was exhumed during a police investigation into suspicious deaths filed a wrongful-death lawsuit Friday against the former owners of the home and two nurses.

Lawyers for Vickie Lund, the daughter of Virginia Cole, filed the complaint in Cook County Circuit Court saying Cole was administered lethal doses of morphine—beyond what was ordered by her physicians—causing her death in September 2006 at age 78.

Named as defendants were WRHC & RC Inc., which held the license for the Woodstock Residence, and two former nurses, Marty Himebaugh and Penny Whitlock.

Himebaugh and Whitlock were indicted this year on criminal charges.
